CURLEY COERCION FAILS SNOW AND GALE

FORBES DEMANDS APOLOGY

Mayor Curley has discovered that his attempt to sanction Boston banks and business houses into contributing to his "Boom Boston" fund has failed. Today he has not only retreated from his attempt to force the State Street Trust Company to give $1,000 to the fund or lose the city deposits, but he also promises to invite Allan Forbes, president of the company, to become a member of the general committee to honor Boston.

Mr. Forbes last night declared he will not serve on a committee connected in any way with Mayor Curley's present methods. Mr. Forbes said:

If the whole project were re-organized and all the money were raised without the coercive methods employed by the Mayor in getting some of the subscriptions on his present list, I would be glad to serve on a committee or do any other work that might be assigned to me. But I shall have nothing to do with the matter as it now stands. I think that Mayor Curley owes me an apology and that he should make it before inviting me to be one of his committee. Here is Mayor Curley's statement, announcing that he has learned that Mr. Forbes did not personally announce that he desired to be regarded as contributing the sum reported by the press, or, in fact, any sum, and that the announcement was publicly made by an over-stated individual without authority.

"I consider the incident closed and at the meeting to be held in the dramatic chamber upon Monday, I will appoint Mr. Forbes to the general committee that the splendid work so well begun may be harmoniously and successfully continued and trust that he will serve."

The members of the committee called upon by the Transcript are William A. Gaston, John R. McVey, Philip Brockton, and Charles Francis Adams, Jr.

The Transcript declares that Mayor Curley has threatened to remove city funds from the State Street Trust Company will not dare carry out his threat, and states that citizens who "know the difference between

7 INJURED IN TUNNEL COLLISION

Seven passengers—six men and one woman—were injured enough to require hospital treatment and 240 others were shaken up and frightened in a rear-end collision between two trolley cars at the Atlantic Avenue underground station of the East Boston Tunnel at 1:45 today.

Those treated at the Relief Hospital were:

- BERKE, JAMES S., No. 321 Broadway, Chelsea, none and hand cut.
- CHAMBERLAIN, GEORGE, No. 3 Broadway, Chelsea, chin cut.
- CHILLIE, JAMES, No. 11 George street, Revere, hand cut.
- EXPANNO, PATRICK, No. 31 George street, Revere, hand cut.
- LEAMAN, EDWIN F., No. 15 Highland avenue, Chelsea, hand cut.
- MANROVE, HELEN, No. 226 Paris street, East Boston, shook in nervous system.
- WHEAT, MYRL, No. 25 Poplar street, Chelsea, hands and fingers cut.

CARS WERE CROWDED

The cars of the long semi-circular type were jammed with passengers. The billiard had delayed surface car traffic, so that passengers had collected in larger numbers than usual at every stop. By the time the cars running in town had arrived at the East Boston entrance of the tunnel at Maverick square they were packed. These two cars held 100 passengers each. The passengers were crowded together in the alcove in every inch of room at either end of the cars.

At 7:45 an inbound car came up the incline from the tunnel proper and stopped at North No. 1 of the Atlantic Avenue station, the first station on the Boston side of the tunnel. A number of passengers started to get out. They were working their way through the crowded aisle.

STARTLED BY CRASH

Suddenly there came a heavy crash from the rear. Another car, in charge of Mortimer Redigan and Conductor Gordon, had come along from behind to stop at North No. 1. But, according to a statement sent out by the Elevated office later, the motorman of the second car misjudged the distance. There was a collision of enough force to shatter thirty-one windows in the two cars.

ALICE NIELSEN WANTS TO KEEP 'BENNIE' TO HERSELF

Benjamin T. Nielsen, son of Alice Nielsen, prima donna, and Lillian L. Adams of the Boston opera ballet, who have taken out a license to marry. Alice Nielsen denies they are to wed, but Miss Adams explains that "Bennie" mother doesn't want him to marry any girl yet.

Benjamin T. Nielsen, assistant stage manager of the Boston Opera House and son of Alice Nielsen, the prima donna, has taken out a license to marry Miss Lillian L. Adams, a member of the Boston Opera ballet. No announcement of the engagement has been made and the first public intimation of the romance became known through the following couple entry at the marriage license office: "Benjamin T. Nielsen, twenty-four, and Lillian L. Adams, twenty."

Miss Adams is one of the youngest and prettiest ballerinas at the opera house. She is a prize brunette and has known the prima donna a young son about ten years. Although the marriage bureau entry gives his age as twenty-four friends say he is but twenty-two. He has traveled a great deal with his famous mother and has spent many seasons in Paris.

Notwithstanding the fact that the city clerk's office, the report was denounced by Alice Nielsen, the young man's mother. "There is no truth in the report," she said. "I wish to say nothing about it. The report is wholly false, and I desire to contradict it."

When it was pointed out that the clerk's records give unmistakable evidence of the taking out of a license she replied: "I do not know anything about that. All I know is that it is not true."

DELAY TRAFFIC IN NEW ENGLAND

A sixty mile gale scourged all New England with a driving, lashing snow today, and from along the coast come reports of disaster and tragedy by sea.

Five men and four women were reported drowned off New London. The tug Pliny Fiske, drawing six coal barges, was battling up the coast when four of the barges broke away, and the tug lost them in the driving snow. It is believed all four sank. The barges were the Rosemarie, Peeney, Fred Millbrook and the Katie Woods.

SEEK TO SHOW PLOT AGAINST SENATOR GORE

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Feb. 14.—The defense in the suit of Mrs. Minnie E. Bond against United States Senator Thomas P. Gore for $50,000 damages expects to secure heavily today, and will probably put Senator Gore on the stand before adjournment this afternoon.

F. W. Fisher of Oklahoma City, was the first witness this morning and said he had a conversation with T. E. Robertson shortly before the fire incident. Fisher was not allowed to tell what was said at that time. Robertson on the stand Thursday testified he had not had any conversation with Fisher, but admitted borrowing $100 from Fisher to pay his expenses in Washington.

A. Z. Earle, a deputy sheriff testified he took a buggy ride with T. E. Robertson and that Robertson told him he wanted him to serve certain papers "which would make his Robertson's revenge exact on a double crossing."

From all along the coast came reports of vessels in distress. Every harbor was crowded with refugees bogged to port by the blinding drift or sixty-mile gale.

The railroads were in distress. On the New Haven, the Boston & Maine, and the Boston & Albany, trains were running late.

In New York four hundred thousand commuters dragged into their cars.

EVERTS LEASES
DEAL: OFF TO SOON

THE BASEBALL SITUATION TODAY
Manager Stallings is expected to start for Boston today in his new details before leaving for the South. He is to be followed South in two weeks by the players of his team for Spring training. The story may postpone Stallings' visit here, however.

John Evers, signed yesterday to the Boston Club, has returned to his home in Troy, where he will remain a few days. Then he will go to Chicago to work for his father-in-law, after which he will go South with his wife. Mrs. Evers will remain at Stallings' residence while Evers is training with the Braves at Miami.

The National League assumed all responsibility for the deal whereby Evers comes to Boston and Secretary of the National League, instead of being sent to Chicago in exchange for Evers.

Murphy, owner of the Chicago Club, declares he will see Han Johnson for $25,000 damages.

Stallings' manager of the two big leagues are firm in their determination to drive Murphy from baseball, but decline to state what means they will use to accomplish this.

Ray Collins agrees to terms with Stallings and the Red Sox. This leaves only Trip Speaker as manager of the Boston team.

Manager Stallings of the Braves was expected to leave New York for Boston today, but the storm may have interfered with his plans and it is probable he may not come at all or may wait and come here next week with President Gaffney.

John Evers signed on a contract to play ball with the Boston Nationals next year. Messrs. Gaffney and Evers are now waiting for details for the Spring training trip. In the meantime, the players of the team will be on their way to Miami, Fla., where quarters have been secured for them.

Johnny Evers, about whom the baseball world has heard so much, returned to Troy, N. Y., his home, after signing a contract. He said he would have to wait until he could get his things, after which he would be ready to join the players at Miami.

John Evers will accompany his husband South, but as Manager Stallings objects to having the wife of a ball player on a training trip, Mrs. Evers will have to wait until the team is in training, which is only eleven miles from the city of Troy.

Stallings' plan to sign Evers as a ball player and now manager of the National League is still a possibility. Murphy will make things pleasant for Evers.

MURPHY LOSES OUT.
By the decision of the National League Board of Directors, the Boston Club not only secures Evers, but will retain Evers and Evers, who were to have been sent to Chicago in exchange for Evers, as the original agreement with Murphy. The National League Board of Directors, the Boston Club not only secures Evers, but will retain Evers and Evers, who were to have been sent to Chicago in exchange for Evers, as the original agreement with Murphy.

FINAL TERMS OF EVERS DEAL.
The final terms of the Evers trade are announced today. The Boston Club is to receive $10,000 a year for four years. He was given a $25,000 bonus—$10,000 cash and $15,000 in stock. In addition to this agreement was drawn up between Evers and the Boston Club, providing for a further payment of $10,000 to Evers should he fail to play ball with the Nationals.

His first second $1500 will be paid to him, and he will receive $1500 if the team is in third position at the end of the season.

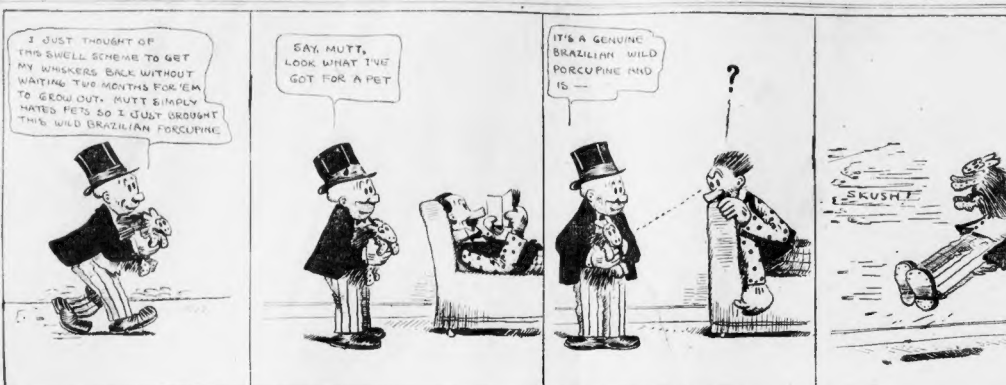

After Evers had signed a Boston contract, President Gaffney sent a telegram to Governor Terry in Hartford asking him to come to New York at once, and the Governor arrived on the scene at 5 o'clock. Governor Terry at once went into session with Gaffney, Harry F. Byrd of Pittsburgh and other National League magnates, after which he said:

"The Evers matter, as far as the Boston Club is concerned, has been decided amicably. The National League, in addition to the Evers contract with Chicago, will give to the president of the Chicago club, I think, $10,000. The deal will be arranged."

He did not pretend to answer a question involving a sum of money and he said to Evers by Mr. Gaffney: "I will say that everything will be settled for the best interests of all concerned. Evers has remained loyal to the National League, and he realizes that the interests will be protected. I congratulate him upon his new engagement."

MURPHY BRINGS SUIT AGAINST JOHNSON
FOR $25,000 DAMAGES
CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—Twenty-five thousand dollars is the sum that President Charles W. Murphy of the Chicago Cubs will demand of President Ben Johnson of the American League when the latter appears at the Chicago team brings suit against Johnson for $25,000 damages for breach of contract.

Showing That Jeff Knows Something About the Habits of the Porcupine

OVER PILES
FAVORITE OVER
EXETER SEVEN

For the first time in history, Boston will see a conflict between athletes of Anderson and Exeter, and the hockey seven of these two preparatory schools clash this afternoon at the Arena.

The teams have been greatly handicapped this season by the lack of practice, but during the past four days the ice has been good and the players got in a lot of valuable work and the teams will go on the ice this afternoon in the best of condition.

Many former Greater Boston schoolboys will appear in the lineup of Anderson and Exeter and their work will be watched with interest.

On the Exeter team are George Lane and George Perry, former members of the Arlington High hockey team that won State championships; and on the Anderson team are High, Stuart, Walker, another Boston boy, Lawrence of Winton and "Red" Martin.

Anderson team Captain Robert Paradise and Captain Paradise played with Medford High and Taylor formerly starred at Noble and Greenough.

Anderson is considered the favorite today because the showing of five games played this season. Anderson won three and Exeter won one while the Exeter team in the two games it has played received an even split.

Drummond Brown, the Exeter player who was a very quiet man, well liked by his teammates and a quiet troublemaker on the club.

When he was released by the Exeter team, he was told to report to Toronto. He showed up at New York the next day and called on the owner of the Exeter team, Mr. H. Brown, who was told to report to Toronto.

"Well, I'll tell you," replied the ball player, "I read so much in the paper about the Exeter team that I thought I would run over and see how they were getting on."

Afterwards remarked that he thought Brown was a queer character.

Cleveland has by far the best amateur hockey in the city and those who saw it in action against the Harvard team are claiming that there are very few professional teams capable of running away from them.

Cleveland has now won eight games this season and is very anxious to make a claim on the championship of the United States, which is the title that the Cleveland A. C. is striving to obtain.

Although the Boston Athletic Association has not participated in many games of late, the seven in its excellent condition, due to the daily work-up, will be at right wing for the ice hockey game at the Harvard rink.

M'FARLAND'S RING STORY

Chicago champion tells how he quit boiler shop to take part in first real contest. Borrowed money from mother to pay for trip away.

This is the second installment of the series of stories of his ring career, beginning with the Chicago Black Sox. In it he details how he came to get his first real start at Davenport, Ia., after an accident in a boiler shop had convinced him that he wasn't cut out for a mechanic. Be sure and follow this series closely.

By PACEY M'FARLAND.

There were some strenuous times around the McFarland household for little Patrick when my father came to a realization that I wanted to become a pugilist or fighting man in the ring. He had heard, of course, of my battle with West, but he didn't mind that so much because he figured it to be merely a boyish prank. But when I told him of my ambition he glared at me for a minute or so and then blurted out:

"I'll make a fighter out of you myself, my hold young hucko; I'll put you in a place where you'll have to fight a lot of hard work. We'll see what that does to you."

GIVEN JOB IN A BOILER SHOP.

There was a family conference after that and I was given a job in a boiler shop. I would make a mighty fine mechanic. My mother had some ambitions for me along that line, and as a cousin of mine had a large boiler shop, it was decided to get me a place in that line. Being a boiler maker, I couldn't see it at all, but I went to work there and stuck out for all of four months.

One day they sent me down into the line hole to do some finished work on the inside of an almost finished boiler. The day was warm and the work a great deal better than that from him and that I intended to do something and in a short time I discovered that I had swollen up and couldn't get out of the hole.

Shower Packey with Cold Water to Reduce Size.

You can water a whole lot of money that I was badly frightened and started to yell for help. I found out afterwards that this is not unusual and they have heroic treatment for such cases.

They merely turned a stream of cold water on me and in a little while I was down to normal size and they let me out.

"That was all of the boiler shop for me," I said. "I was used all through and looked like I had fallen in the river. The Willie Ritchie fight was called off to stop Kid Herman and me, I always liked Davenport. But that's another story."
